

Movie Review

by Christopher Kenkoff

Over spring break, I saw the movie Pacific Rim Uprising. This movie is one to remember!

This movie is mainly about Jake and his friends trying to defeat a giant robot. The robot wants to destroy the world. Jake and his friends use their robots to save the world.

The movie starts out slow and then the action rises in the middle. In the beginning of the movie, Jake and his friend were playing around with a robot in his garage. This was against the law so they got arrested. While they were in jail a giant robot was attacking the world. No one was able to stop the robot from attacking. Jake and his friend got out of jail. With the world falling apart a man asked Jake if he would use his robot to help them. Jake and his friends worked together using their robots to defeat the giant robot. The movie ended happy because Jake and his friends saved the world. I thought this movie was cool because of all the action.

Overall, in my opinion this one is one of the best action movies I have seen. I liked how the characters helped each other along with all the action.
